

The Camaguey woman Mayumi Guerra González, is the head of the Informatics Department at the Provincial Justice Directorate, and for her it has become a goal to prevent the digitization of Civil Status records from being delayed; one of the most important tasks assumed by this group to contribute to the computerization of society.

Faced with the situation derived from the current epidemiological scenario, the Board of Directors of said institution chose to assign workers with the skills and technology necessary in their homes, the digitization of the volumes corresponding to the main municipality so as not to lose the good pace they were carrying in this sense, says the young woman.

In her case, Mayumi shares such responsibility, with the hours of the teleclass to also be aware of the learning of her little Jeremi, a fourth-grade student at the Renato Guitart semi-boardings school, in the Agramontine capital.

"I thought that the child was going to find it difficult to adapt to this stage because he is used to playing sports like soccer and here at home there is no space for that, but for entertainment he has chosen to enjoy audiovisuals, board games and video games", Mayumi says.

I advise the population to support the country from home, either by complying with the measures adopted or by working from a distance to contribute to the country.

Thus, this Camaguey woman complies, without leaving home, with her labor and maternal obligations and surely when we return to normality, she will accumulate a good amount of digitized documents that will tax a more agile service to the population. (Text: Yamylé Fernández) (Photos: taken from the interviewee's Facebook profile)